

REMARKS

Status

This Amendment is responsive to the Office Action dated June 30, 2005 in which Claims 1-53 were rejected. No claims have been canceled; Claim 19 has been amended; and no new claims have been added. Accordingly, Claims 1-53 are pending in the application, and are presented for reconsideration and allowance.

Claim Rejection - 35 USC 103

Claims 1-53 stand rejected under 35 USC 103 as being unpatentable over US Application No. 2002/0087622 (Anderson) in view of US Patent No. 6,646,754 (Redd). This rejection is respectfully traversed.

The present invention is not obvious from the cited references since features of the present invention are not disclosed or taught by the cited references.

For example, neither Anderson nor Redd teach or disclose the feature claimed in Claim 1 of arranging a plurality of digital images to produce a multimedia composition comprised of the plurality of digital images. That is, Anderson is not composing a multimedia composition. Rather, Anderson is looking at individual images. In order to display the individual images appropriately on a display, Anderson needs to transcode the images to review the images on a web browser. This is stated in Anderson at Paragraph [0009]. In addition, contrary to the Office Action's position, there is no mention of the claimed feature of composing a multimedia composition in Anderson's Paragraph [0017]. Since neither of the cited references teach or disclosure these claimed features of the present invention, Claim 1 is not obvious, and therefore believed to be patentable.

With regard to Claims 2-10, these claims are dependent on Claim 1 and therefore include all the features thereof. For the reasons set forth above with regard to Claim 1, Claims 2-10 are also believed to be patentable. In addition, with specific regard to Claims 6 and 7, Redd discloses back-printing information (see Redd Col 7, line 4). Accordingly, Redd does not teach the inclusion of audio material and textual information as claimed in Claims 6 and 7.

The same arguments set forth above with regard to Claim 1 are equally applicable with respect to the rejections of Claims 11-21. As such, Claims 11-21 are believed to be patentable.

With regard to independent Claims 22, 32, 33, and 43, the same arguments set forth above with regard to Claim 1 are equally applicable with respect to the rejection of these claims. In addition, in the present invention, the user is accessing thumbnail images at the second location to compose the multimedia composition. In contrast, in Anderson, the user is viewing the images at the user's location with image references. Accordingly, additional claimed features are not disclosed by Anderson. As such, Claims 22, 32, 33, and 43 are believed to be patentable.

Claims 23-31 are dependent on Claim 22 and therefore include all the features thereof. For the reasons set forth above with regard to Claim 22, Claims 23-31 are also believed to be patentable.

Claims 34-42 are dependent on Claim 33 and therefore include all the features thereof. For the reasons set forth above with regard to Claim 33, Claims 34-42 are also believed to be patentable.

Claims 44-52 are dependent on Claim 43 and therefore include all the features thereof. For the reasons set forth above with regard to Claim 43, Claims 44-52 are also believed to be patentable.

The same arguments set forth above with regard to Claim 1 are equally applicable with respect to the rejection of Claim 53. Accordingly, Claim 53 is believed to be patentable.
